

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A test composition and device are described for determining levels of cyanuric acid in water, especially water in swimming pools and spas. The invention is especially characterized by avoiding the use of melamine as part of the test composition.